Fiester will direct OU band for student 'pop' concert Tuesday

Three "firsts" are on tap for OU students next Tuesday, when Robert W. Fiester directs the OU band in a student "Pop" Concert at 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium.

The 45-piece band will be using the new stage risers for the first time, the entire program is made up of selections never before presented by the OU band, and an original Fiester composition will be played for the first time by the band.

Classes shortened

Classes will be shortened for the convocation. Schedule of shortened classes is 8-8:40; 8:45-9:25; convocation; 10:30-11:10; and 11:15-11:55.

Fiester promises that numbers of interest to all students will be presented at this annual band concert, and hopes the students will show an interest and pack the auditorium. He also expects to have a

Alpha Sig's in charge of various arrangements are: transportation, Al Zach; hospitality, Bill Glickfield; reception, Glenn Margrit; food, Richard Carson and banquet, Burt McMillan and Erwin Schultz.

Council aim is earlier hours for bookstore

The possibility of opening the bookstore at 7:45 a.m. for students will be investigated this week by members of the Student Council.

Freshman Council member Harold Sage brought up the suggestion at the Council's weekly meeting Wednesday afternoon. Working on the committee with Sage is Joanne Larkin.

Council members also discussed the forthcoming Tea Dance next Thursday and the possibility of putting aside money for choir robes in next year's budget.

Dick Beem reported that a "German band" is being planned for the remaining basketball games.

The Student Council sponsored Coffee Hour Wednesday was cancelled as Louis A. Warren could not appear. Mr. Warren was to have discussed the life of Abraham Lincoln.

The next Coffee Hour is being planned for next week and will be based on Brotherhood Week.

Cadet team will answer questions here next week

Juniors and seniors, interested in officer opportunities in the U. S. Air Force will have a chance to find out all the answers next week here on the campus. A U. S. Air Force Aviation Cadet selection team will be here Wednesday to Friday in the Student Center.

According to Capt. Robert Council, who is making arrangements for the team, this visit is one of the many being made to accredited college campuses this year by Air Force officers. The selection team will be ready to answer any questions as well as process any OU men who qualify.

Capt. Council stated that there are three courses of training being offered to qualified men.

1. Aviation Cadet pilot training consisting of one year of intensive schooling in all phases of aviation. Cadets receive $105 per month during training, and upon graduation are awarded commissions as second lieutenants.

2. Aviation Cadet Navigator training consists of a year's school-

Ordered to active duty as flying officers, these men earn pay and allowance amounting to almost $5000 per year.

3. Air Force Officer Candidate School consists of six months of training in administrative and technical subjects. Students receive pay equal to that of a staff sergeant. Graduates are awarded commissions as second lieutenants. Those who do not complete any of the three courses are returned to civilian life.

Pritchard compiles new teaching manual

A new student teacher's manual has been prepared by George S. Pritchard, education instructor.

The book, now mimeographed, will appear in printed form next year.

Art department plans silver show, students' exhibit, visit by Winter

OU's Department of Art will have more than its share of important events during February and March.

A collection of sterling silver by 12 artists from university faculties will be displayed here Feb. 26. Included in the exhibit will be a silver bowl with ebony handle and ladle by M. Robert Koch, professor of fine arts at Omaha U.

Selected because of outstanding art accomplishments in their field, the 12 representatives submitted their raised silver at the Handy and Harmon Silver Conference and Exhibition last summer. The exhibit, headed by Sir Reginald Hill, was held at Rochester, N. Y. Hill is silversmith for the Royal House of England.

An entire student show will follow the silver exhibit on March 2. Student works include ceramics, sculpture and paintings.

March 6 will feature a convocation with the famous artist Edward Winter. Mr. Winter, outstanding in the field of vitreous enamels, will address the student body on "Fine Arts and Business." The artist was unable to make his scheduled appearance here last December because of a snow storm.

Debating squads begin road tourney schedule tomorrow

Six University of Omaha debaters will visit Lincoln tomorrow for an all-day tournament with the University of Nebraska, Doane College and Midland. They are Duane Post, Jim Klein, Art Lefitz, Sherman Poska, Bob Delhoff and Teresa Littlejohn.

Squads will represent OU on February 23-24 at the 40th University of Nebraska Invitational Tournament, also at Lincoln. "In football and basketball we do not meet competition as we do here," remarked Mr. Tyson, debate head. He explained that teams as far south as Texas and as far west as Colorado attend this bout, as well as many Big Seven representatives.

Last year's team came through with top ratings at this competition. Seven students attended; three received Superior ratings; four received Excellent ratings.

Gene Step and John Madden, Jerry Roitstein and Ralph Selby will enter in debate. Reed Belden and Gene Step will compete in discussion. Omaha University is entering James MacPherson in radio news-casting and Burt McMillan in extemporaneous speaking.

On February 19th two debate squads will visit a unified meeting of the Omaha Women's Club. Gene Step and John Madden, Duane Post and Reed Belden will give the condensed debate.

Two men's teams will travel to St. Paul for the 60th Annual Northwest Debate Tournament at St. Thomas' College, March 1, 2, and 3. The two teams include Gene Step, Jerry Roitstein, John Madden, and Ralph Selby.

Repeat engagement requests have been received from the Jr. Chamber of Commerce where debaters met on February 7th.

Retailing major wins promotional contest

A major in retailing at the University of Omaha is one of the winners in a nationwide contest sponsored by Time magazine. Lorrelle Alford, a senior at the university, won a year's subscription to the magazine.

Students in advertising classes were asked to judge six promotional letters and arrange them in effective order for the sale of subscriptions.

Sixty-one Omaha U advertising students entered the nationwide contest.

Transmitting system may be installed soon

If enough students are interested in radio transmitting, a transmitter will be set up in the physics department for their use, according to John G. McMillan, physics instructor.

An amateur license isn't needed to be able to participate. McMillan requests any student interested to leave a note in his box in the Registrar's office.

Linton tells job of radio behind 'Curtain'

"Before its European broadcasts can be effective, the United States needs to find out what the people behind the Iron Curtain are thinking." This was the view expressed by Bruce A. Linton at the Faculty Lecture Series Wednesday evening.

Linton spoke on "The Role of Radio in the War of Ideologies." He is director of radio at the university.

Advertising is successful in America because it appeals to people's basic desires, according to Linton. "If the United States wants its propaganda directed behind the Iron Curtain to be successful, it must shape its appeals in psychological and verbal language the people over there can understand."

"Besides a better understanding of the people the United States is trying to reach, a unified foreign policy and a professional radio staff are necessary for effective radio propaganda to European countries," concluded Linton.

Well everyone's getting back in the swing again. . . the semiannual 'after-exams' resolution, "This semester I'm gonna do my assignments every week instead of letting them slide," has been forgotten and trampled by hourly treks to the shack.

The draft enthusiasm works both ways in these United States. Sometime after Maufrey Stewart got her little notice urging her not to enlist, Ian Campbell, a senior at Northwestern, says he got a letter asking him to join the WAC's. It was addressed to Miss Campbell and offered him a pleasant stay in the army. Campbell had no comment. Geor-r-r-ge say I.

Signs of the times. . . "So Long, It's Been Good to Know You" is way out front in the shack's nickel pluggin' department. "Easy Go" and "The Roving Kind" are right behind. What is this, a disease or something.

"ish..o..n..shone! s..p..e..chay.. speech!" Sounding like a second grade spelling class, elementary shorthand carries on. But you should try deciphering chicken scratches. I don't know but that it could be easier.

They've got the right idea at Hastings. One student decided to see if professors actually read all the term papers required in the course. He inserted a paragraph in his paper stating that he didn't believe teachers read what pupils write and asked the prof to underline the paragraph if he read it. The paper was returned. . . unmarked.

Well, profs are human too. Who's got the time?

History of Russia is revealing dirt-slingin' antics of the Russians. It seems that whenever the Russians don't want to believe the Scandinavian version of Russian

Strictly from students

The 'female angle' for army receives yes and no opinions

There's been so much said about the draft and men that the women have been neglected. Washington rumors have promoted the idea of the possibility of drafting women and since there are many such personages here that will be affected we want to know. . .

Question: Should women be drafted?

Marbeth Negathon: If the women's service organizations didn't have such a bad name, it would be a good thing.

Don Sarcoian: What do I think about women being drafted? Before me!

Sophie Riza: If we're needed we should be drafted.

Roger Orr: I'd rather have them here to come home to than right over there with me.

Jean Duncan: Who's going to wait to be drafted?

Dick McKee: I want the office jobs.

Jean Salladay: Somebody has to stay home to keep up the morale.

Dick McCord: Better than men.

Charlotte Weinberg: If men of draft age are forced to fight there's no reason why women the same age should stay home and do what they want to.

Ted Marcuzzo: Would you like your steady to be drafted?

Jean McDonald: Too much red tape now.

Bob Rose: No. No guts.

V-Day chairmen find job of organizing time-consuming

February 28 is the red letter day in the lives of three OU students. Vocations Day will climax the months of planning and working and hustling that Gene Step, Nancy Jones and Jackie Zerbe, student managers, have been doing.

Seminars rearranged

And the climax will be, they hope, as successful as the two previous Vocations Days have been. Overall-head Gene Step says: "This year's day will be a standardized pattern after the last two with seminars added and changed in fields where there is definite interest."

The Fieldhouse exhibits which added so much extra help and variety to the Vocations Day idea have been cut out this year. So there will be no free coffee, cheese and crackers, and other tidbits that were given out last year.

What's cookin'? The Home Ec class? Midst tears and sneaky remarks a definite smell of onions floated through the halls and up the vents into the rooms this week. I wonder how many students the cafeteria served that day.

Anyone care to apply?

Vocations Day will be in a few weeks. This has proved to be a help to a lot of students who do not know the possibilities in their chosen vocation. It's too bad too many call it "vacations day."

If your class proves dull, watch the prof for diversion. He can't stand still. He walks back and forth, wraps first one leg around a chair, then the other, throws his knee up on the desk, then curls his arms around the back of the chair and leans. Some of these professors have real muscular control.

It seems that the faculty has organized a square dance club. Do you have a petition for this?

Jean McDonald and Sally Step, the two Tomahawk wheels, will be surprised when the Tomahawk comes out. Their aims as written by Jean Duncan and Marian McKay are "To avoid the draft" and "To be classified 4-F."

Mary Alice Hanson: Might as well without any men around.
Norman Paasch: Seeing as how I'm going to be pretty lonesome at Topeka, I say yes.
Laurel Main: Somebody has to stay home and take care of the men over 30.
Bob Sedlacek: Not unless they really need them.

Jones prepares speech

"There will be smaller exhibits in the rooms though," said Jackie Zerbe. "I think the biggest job we've done is to organize the seminars and keep track of all the chairmen. The student chairmen have done a tremendous job."

Nancy Jones seconds this. She's worrying about a speech she has to give at the night session for parents and business men. "They just told me."

Probably the biggest factor that this job takes is time. But the three chairmen have handled the scarcity with finesse. "Just give everyone a little bit to do and then supervise. No lost sleep here."

The council and school light . . .

We noted an item in the Feb. 6 issue of The Gateway which seemed particularly significant. It concerns a Student Council investigation of the lighting in OU's classrooms and halls.

The investigation, conducted with the help of an OPPD official, showed Omaha University's lighting to be "inadequate in many cases." The council committee recommended adjustments to be made now, but pointed out that a complete change in the lighting system is necessary.

We suspect this story somewhat surprised many students. A few students seem to enjoy complaining regularly that "the council never does anything." Well, council members do a great deal of the "routine work" behind dances, student celebrations, organizational activities, and other day-to-day problems. Now, we have an example of their long-range work for the university and student body.

University authorities were probably aware that the lighting in the building is not all it should be. But the council report served as a reminder. And it indicates that the council has an interest not only in the fun of university life but also in the betterment of the university itself.

We hope the lighting defects uncovered by the council will be remedied soon. And we hope the Student Council will continue to work for both the present and the future of the university.

T.N.T.

Thanks from the president . . .

Last week university students had a rush-order balloting experience. When we filed out of the auditorium after the vote on Air ROTC, most of us griped considerably about the "mock election." By the next day, most of the resentment had disappeared. Now, just to show students that their gripe was recognized, The Gateway passes on the following letter which was received Monday.

I want to express my sincere appreciation to the students of the university for their willingness to cooperate so splendidly in the very urgent matter which was brought to their attention Feb. 7 regarding the Air Force ROTC. Normally we would have taken more time for such a ballot. However, since the time limit is so short for the submission of the report to the proper authorities, it was necessary to secure the poll of both the faculty and the student body in as short a time as possible.

Indians entertain Colorado College, Souix Falls Braves

Two home games will highlight the weekend basketball activity for Omaha U's cage squad.

Tonight the Indians will entertain Colorado College while Monday Sioux Falls College will play a return engagement of the Fieldhouse court.

Although handicapped by the loss of Jack Quamme, all-time Bengal high scorer and three year all-conference choice, CC has several returning lettermen.

At the top of the list are George Sweeney and Team Captain Marvin Powell. Sweeney, a 6-2 senior forward, was runnerup for scoring honors last year with 291 points. And he is a big cog in the Tiger plans this season.

Powell, although only 5-11, managed 115 counters in last year's campaign. He has two years of varsity experience and is also a senior.

But Colorado will also have trouble keeping the OU pointgetters under cover. With the sharpshooting of Bob Rose and Larry Michaels from farcourt combined with Don Claussen's work under the basket, the Tiger's shouldn't suffer from lack of exercise.

Coach Don Pflasterer can also call on two hustlers in Bob Moscrey and Joe Gurnett plus the ever-improving Bob Stedman at the pivot.

In the clash against Sioux Falls, Omaha will attempt to claim the Brave's scalp for the second time this season. The Indians defeated Sioux Falls 52-33, Jan. 2.

Last year the Braves handed Omaha a pair of setbacks, but the Red and Black are out to turn the tables this year.

Heading the Sioux Falls contingent is freshman Don Palmer. Although only six feet tall, Palmer plays the pivot and was the big gun in the first game.

Key men in the Sioux Falls machine include senior letterman Bernie Duffy and Keith Stillwell, junior veteran, at the forwards.

Vikings down Omaha in Fieldhouse battle

Omaha U took it on the chin from Augustana Monday night in the Fieldhouse, 68-53.

The sharp shooting Vikings from South Dakota swept to a fast 19-11 lead after the first ten minutes of play. By the end of the first half, the Vikes widened their margin to 35-23.

Omaha U's five just couldn't seem to click, and they gradually slipped farther behind. With 12 minutes left in the game, the Indians were on the short end of a 52-32 score.

This was the signal for Coach Don Pflasterer to send in reserves. He put in a new squad with Lee Nelson, who had seen some action earlier, at the post; and Bob Chapman and Tom Mosiman at forwards. Keith Christie and Herb Sklenar worked at the guard positions.

This combination started to click immediately, and in four minutes chopped seven points off the Viking lead, and worked the score to 58-45.

The best that the Indians could muster in the scoring department was Don Claussen's 12 counters. He was followed closely by Nelson who finished with nine.

In the curtain raiser to the varsity tilt, the Paposes dropped their second game to Offutt AFB this time it was 68-57.

Wrestlers meet K-State matmen in Wildcats' lair

Tonight, Coach Allie Morrison's wrestlers will tangle with Kansas State on the Wildcat mats.

Once more, the Indian grapplers will go against their opponents under a great handicap. Morrison is still without a 123 pounder, so he will be forced to forfeit that match which will give Kansas State a five point lead before they even start.

One man has come out for the 123 pound berth, according to Morrison, but he hasn't seen him work out yet to determine whether or not he can make the squad. The new man is Leo Moore.

Earlier in the season, Kansas State drew with Colorado State, 14-14. Colorado beat the Indians on the recent western road trip completed by Omaha. But, the Indians forfeited the first two matches against Colorado.

Milton Hearn has been working out with the OU mat team with his eyes on a varsity berth. He is a heavyweight. Hearn would have to beat out Howard Byram to do this.

"Byram is being helped by the additions of Hearn," said coach Morrison. "Up until this time, Howard hasn't had any one his own weight to work out against," added Morrison.

Frank Mancuso has trained down to 137 pounds for the last two meets, and he is planning to stay at that weight as he will enter the National Collegiate Wrestling Meet at 137 pounds.

The meet is to be held March 23 and 24 in Bethlehem, Penn.

Tonight's meet will be the next to last of the season for the Indians, and they will be out trying for a win over the Wildcats who finished third in the Big Seven last year.

The Omaha line-up:

130 — Leonard Schluter or Jim Cchristen
